The course is divided into two modules. The first module deals with what is meant by compliance, how risks are treated and how they can be mitigated. In addition, it deals with the recognition of compliance violations and, subsequently, with options for an adequate response. In the second module, case studies are used to prepare for the practical application. In order to secure the highest practical value for the participants, a team of experts from various industries accompanies the course and works alongside the class to develop various solutions. Such, the participants do not only benefit from the many years of the experts experience, but also from the diversity of their professional background (e.g. government, business, university).
